Last month the world woke up to a new world dis-order. What boiled over in Paris is simply a pot that has been simmering for a long time. What Israel has endured for years has now come to the rest of the world, even San Bernardino, California.

We have watched in worry as airliners exploded in the sky or simply disappeared. Varieties of car and suicide bombers have killed hundreds, as gunmen sprayed bullets into crowds, mostly in the “third world,” only occasionally

Are we as serious about sharing the gospel as this guy is about serving his god?

No Sowing —No Harvest

Jesus used the parable of the sower to show the various ways the word of God is received. Sowing the seed was necessary before anything would grow, whether withered plants from shallow ground or healthy fruit from good ground.

Sowing was essential to any kind of harvest. So it is with gospel tracts: no sowing, no reaping. In the parable, much of the seed went to waste, but it still was worth the effort of doing the sowing to get a harvest from the good ground.

Some in the modern church have scorned soul winners who use tracts and street signs for appearing to relish it when sinners go to hell. We must be very careful of this attitude. True, Jesus was very pointed in His discussions with the scribes and

Is the King James Bible All Wrong About Death and Hell?

By David W. Daniels

Is it true? Is the King James Bible a goldmine for groups that don't believe in hell? After all that I have said about the new Bibles removing the word "hell" and some of the words about hell, I was amazed to find out a new accusation: That the King James is dangerous because of the times it doesn't translate the Hebrew Sheol or the Greek Hades as hell! And that the cultists just love to use the King James because of this supposed "mistake."

Well, the accusation is just wrong. Satan sure hates the King James Version. Is there no limit to the lies he will cook up about it?

They can't be talking about the New Testament. Hades only appears in the New Testament 11 times. And 10 times it is translated "hell." Just one time it is translated "grave:" 1 Corinthians 15:55: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave (hades), where is thy victory?"

Look at the context! This is talking about the afterlife, but it's not about torments of hell as we English-speakers understand it—which is always negative. The translators chose to use the word "grave," to describe being put in the ground, to descend into the afterlife, whether to paradise, "Abraham's bosom," or torments—what we call "hell."

1 Corinthians 15:55 is a direct reference to Hosea 13:14. "I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction..." Grave, of course, is "Sheol" in the Old Testament because it was written in Hebrew.

Believe it or not, that was something the King James translators didn't have to fix. 36 years before King James, the Bishops Bible translated Hebrew "Sheol" and Greek "Hades" the same way, with the same words. The Bishops Bible translators had already gotten that right!

"Okay," you say. "But what about the 31 verses in the Old Testament that Sheol was translated 'the grave'?"

Great question. Totally fair. So let's look at the very first time the King James translators ever translated Sheol as "the grave" instead of "hell." Genesis 37:35. "And all his sons and all his daughters rose up to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted; and he said, For I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning. Thus his father wept for him." The word for "grave" here is Sheol. Jacob didn't mean he was expecting hell—he's referring to death. Again, you've got to look at the context.

But why fault just the King James? There are 15 other versions, 5 of them Jewish, that translate Sheol as "the grave" in this verse including: The NIV (1984 and 2011), The New Living Translation (1996, 2004, 2007), The New King James (1982); 5 Jewish Bibles, including The Complete Jewish Bible (1998), Jewish Publication Society (JPS) 1917, and the Rabbi Isaac Leaser Bible (1853).

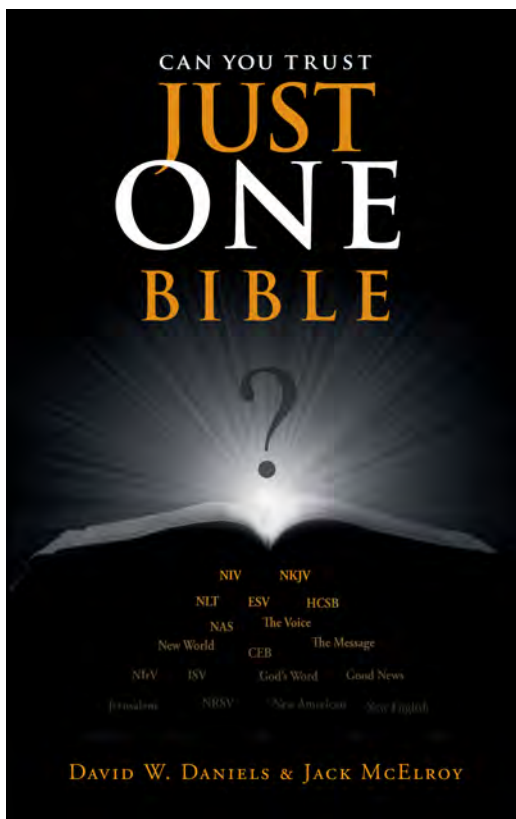

So you see, translating Sheol and Hades by two words, "hell" and "the grave," depending on the context, is nothing new. We have lots of words in English that have more than one meaning, depending upon how they're used.

Other Bible versions are the ones at fault when they minimize hell by leaving Sheol and Hades untranslated, with "hell" in the Bible only a few times, or as some do leave it out altogether!

Which would you rather have: A Bible that removes "hell" altogether, and refuses to translate the Hebrew Sheol and the Greek Hades? Or one that has a lot of "hell" in it? I want everyone to avoid hell at all costs. So I've made my choice. How about you?

"Transgenders" have succeeded in bringing into focus one of the practical problems of deviant sex. The bathroom issue is becoming the hot button.

First it was LG, then LGB, and LGBT, and now, LGBTQQ! Or, would you believe LGBTQQIAAP? (Google "Urban Dictionary" for that one.)

This bowl of alphabet soup the media is feeding us, beginning with (L)esbian,(G)ay, (B)isexual, (T)ransgender...is getting hard to swallow in one bite. But, it's the "T" that has a lot of people choking, especially those who object to finding a "man" in the little girl's bathroom.

Houston just had a Texas-sized political dust-up over a (L)esbian mayor who insisted that birth sex didn't matter if the man/woman felt inclined to believe "he/she" was a woman/man.

The media was horrified when a handful of local pastors mounted a public objection to the new city ordinance promoting such foolishness.

City Hall brought its full weight down on the heads of the pastors, but Houston proved again the power of the people by voting down the attack with a ballot referendum on the "bathroom bill."

They are also voting for a new mayor, but the issue still percolates.

A number of states have capitulated to in the West. Yet, "tolerance" remained the watchword. But now, with the fun and games literally interrupted by this seething terror, even top Western leaders are scratching their heads in bewilderment.

Some wiser talking heads are suggesting that a military response might be inadequate against the Muslim's so-called "ideology." But all wars have been conflicts over ideologies. Some are just a little more obvious.

Hitler had an idea(ology) that Aryans were better than Jews and other "sub-human" beings. But the West had a counter "idea" that freedom was better—and millions died to prove it.

But Europe was like Rome when it fell to the barbarians. It had become soft with selfishness and amusements, preferring fun and games rather than vigilance to protect their freedom.

What some have called the "clash of civilizations" is at the heart of the now world-wide conflict. The big question: will freedom win again, or has it lost its heart? Hitler can again be our teacher. When he lied, and then invaded, most of Europe had already decided for humanism's science and reason, against biblical righteousness.

This proved no match for Hitler's high tech war machine piloted by converts to his Nazi "ideology." Most of Europe fell in a matter of months. Only the biblical Christian heritage of Britain and America provided the heart and will to spill enough blood to stop him.

Today, a more fanatical "ideology" has raised a bloody butcher knife against a decadent West. Like Hitler, it has commandeered modern high tech weaponry in a brazen pledge to force every "infidel" to convert, die or grovel in slavery. Part of Islam's plan is infiltration through the broken gates of "tolerance" into the haven of our "multiculturalism." Once they gain enough power, the blood bath begins.

So, who will save us? Modern humanism has now sapped the life out of America, the last global power able to stop such a global evil. Twice in the last century America saved Europe from the "barbarians." No one is left to save America.

The Mission Field is Coming to America

In all major cities, it is becoming more common to hear foreign languages spoken.

Even while many of these newcomers will learn the national language, it is important to tell them about Jesus in their “language of the heart” — the one they grew up with.

We are responding to the increasing interest in foreign language tracts by stocking more foreign titles. Here are new foreign titles which are now available in any quantity, in stock.

Are Modern Bibles Built on a Faulty Foundation?

Modern research techniques may have uncovered the unthinkable.

One of Satan's prime strategies is counterfeiting. For 200 years a billion-dollar industry has been built upon trust in two foundational documents.

That industry is playing with the central information on the eternal destiny of all of mankind. Let's make this simple. If you use (and trust in) a modern version Bible, it may not be exactly what you think it is.

Let's look at a bit of history. Four hundred years ago, a war raged in Europe. One side forbad copies of God's words to the people for centuries. But insurgents (believers) gathered an army of linguists, printers, and royalty, and pledged to place a commonly readable Book in the hands of every plowman.

In the midst of the battle, in 1604, the king of England authorized fifty-plus world-renown scholars to assemble and produce one common English Bible. He decreed that it would be the single source of God's words for English speakers. After several years of complex deliberations, a final manuscript was agreed upon. In 1611 it was published and became simply, "The English Bible."

Trust in this Book inspired the greatest revival and missionary effort the world has ever seen.

However, God's sworn enemy had not been idle. About 200 years after its birth, a movement arose to "update" this Bible. Was it an honest effort to adapt to changes in the language? Or were nefarious forces determined to take down this lion of a book?

Regardless, this revision effort of 1870-1885 ignored thousands of manuscripts available—and settled on just two. These two became the foundation of all modern Bible versions, along with their Bible-doubling footnotes.

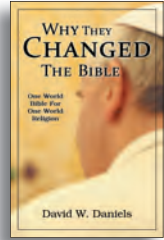

Now, along with other researchers, David W. Daniels is discovering the possibility that one of these two pillars supporting the modern, billion-dollar industry is a counterfeit, faked by Jesuits and other New World Order hacks.

Details are too complex for this writing, but there appears to be some dark historical mystery surrounding both the Codex Sinaiticus and the Codex Vaticanus. Daniels is viewing data recently posted on the internet to show suspicious alterations of Sinaiticus just before Westcott and Hort almost exclusively relied upon them to create their Greek New Testament, the foundation of all modern versions.

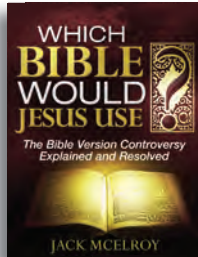

This calls into question the reason proponents gave to use them: that they were simply older—thus more likely better—than all the other thousands of manuscripts. Never mind the hundreds of omissions, alterations and discrepancies found in them.

Daniels has posted a playlist of vlogs on YouTube detailing these findings. If evidence continues to verify this view, how many will have the courage to stand against this monstrous fakery?

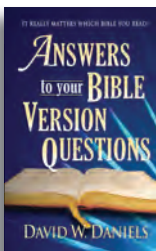

As Daniels points out: "All this confusion is completely unnecessary for anyone who chooses to stand on the proven reliability of the words of God preserved in the Bible that King James authorized."

the argument that it is discriminatory to keep boys-turned-girls off the sports team of their chosen "identity." The unintended consequences came up when the "girl" that looked like a boy wanted to shower with the other girls that looked like girls.

School districts have taken various approaches trying to make accommodations, since the Feds have threatened to cut off Education Department funding if they don't.

Some put up special curtains but ran the risk of the "parents" complaining that this, too, amounted to a form of "discrimination" and risked offending the singled-out student.

Some school districts claim that the bathroom is not an issue, since individual stalls are available to assure privacy. Many parents are not comfortable with that "solution."

Like Houston, concerned parents and leaders see the ballot box as a suitable response. California is one of the states that has adopted policies forcing schools to allow transgender students to use locker rooms and bathrooms of their claimed "identity." Opponents are mounting a ballot initiative at present.

General anti-discrimination policies of eleven other states are being interpreted as opening the bathrooms and showers to students based on their choice.

This "identity" appears on the surface to be purely objective on the part of the student. Some have pointed out that this fulfills the fantasy of any red blooded teen guy to get to undress in the girl's locker room.

Some administrations have put down stipulations that the student has to show a consistent pattern of "transgenderness," even requiring a note from a recognized therapist. This also goes against the LGBTXXX drive to "normalize" this behavior that "deviates" from the Creator's intention for marriage.

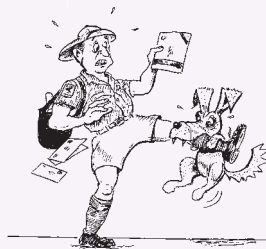

As the general public becomes outraged over this assault on the privacy of our children, soul winners must shoulder some of the blame. Had we been fully diligent with the Great Commission, perhaps this legalization of sin would have been prevented.

Now, our only option is to boldly speak God's better way to everyone who will listen. Saturation evangelism with highly readable gospel tracts helped bring about past revivals. Chick tracts use an engaging story to open a deceived heart and then pour in the healing power of God's word.

Many people write to Chick Publications how a tract either started them toward reconciling with their Creator, or provided a boost along the way. Recent Court Cases Approve Public Witnessing

A couple of obscure cases were decided in court recently providing precedents for soul winning protection in public places. One case involved a group of "Christian Evangelists" who confronted a Muslim festival in Dearborn, Michigan in 2012. Their approach involved abusive signs and a pig's head. Of course, the response quickly turned violent requiring police intervention. (Searching "Dearborn" on the Chick.com website brings up other BATTLE CRY articles posted at the time.)

Instead of providing protection from the rioters, police escorted the Christians from the scene. They sued, and after several appeals, the full 6th Circuit Court of Appeals found in their favor and awarded them damages for violation of their First Amendment rights.

As described in a July 2012 BATTLE CRY article, soul winner Tim Berends infiltrated the same festival quietly wearing an "I ♥ Muslims" T-shirt, and offering everyone a Chick Tract. Moving gently through the crowds of the three-day festival, he salted in 4,000 copies of the tract, Unforgiven, with no hassle. Media pictures show a smiling woman wearing a Muslim head scarf accepting a tract graciously offered by Tim.

The "wise as serpent, harmless as a dove" approach seems to work the best. Nevertheless, the court case won by the other group is important for all of us. It again illustrates the strength of the Constitution's guarantees of freedom of speech and religion in public places.

The other recent case involved church signs in the little town of Gilbert, Arizona. Pastor Clyde Reed was using small yard signs along a thoroughfare to direct people to his Sunday meetings. He placed them the night before and retrieved them after service the next day.

City fathers mandated that the signs not be up that long and threatened a fine.

There is only one solution: revival. King Solomon observed in Proverbs 14:34 that "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." Many decades ago Lady Liberty began losing her hold on righteousness. Soon Supreme Court decisions began legalizing sin.

Only time will tell if the Western heart can be restored. But Bible believers are the only hope. No doubt these are the "perilous times" of 2 Timothy 3. Without another Great Awakening, only Christ's return wielding His "rod of iron" (Rev. 19:15) will be able to set things right again.

In the meantime, we soul winners are to "occupy" until He comes, whatever happens. Occupy does not mean sitting around waiting on our "blessed assurance." The question still hangs in the air: Will we be found faithful to the Great Commission?

No-nonsense gospel tracts have always played a big part in sparking the revivals throughout history. Chick Publications ships several million tracts a year in over 100 languages. Virtually anything you need is available for soul winners concerned enough to carry the gospel to a world increasingly desperate for answers. Jesus is the Answer. We Christians just need to get that message into the hands of unbelievers caught in today's confusion.

For Muslims, we must show them a God that actually loves them. Their Allah unpredictably "misleads whom he wants," without compassion. Several Chick tracts are designed either to speak God's love to the Muslim's heart, or expose Islam's teachings. Chick also publishes several paperback books to better equip soul winners to reach Muslims. It is even possible that you or I could put the right paper missionary into the hands of a would-be suicide bomber that would redirect his life from destruction to the real paradise of God.

Church Planting Made Easier —With Chick Tracts

Reports continue to come in from missionaries using Chick tracts to start and strengthen churches.

Robert Taylor - Mexico

“This is the beginning of the church plant in Pueblo Yaqui, Mexico. It is a difficult work, but our liberal use of Chick tracts made our work much easier. I would recommend any missionary, wherever in the world they are, to use Chick tracts in the ground breaking phase of their church plant if they want to make their job much easier, and effective. Chick Tracts used in the right combination are a powerful evangelizing tool. Our favorite combination is This Was Your Life and One Way, in Spanish. Chick tracts have a powerful gospel message in an easy-to-read format that people of low reading skills can understand.”

Jerry Alford – Venezuela

Even under a severe political and economic climate, Chick tracts are still being used to start new congregations and strengthen others. In one city, the government has temporarily detained church leaders and confiscated their building. The socialist government has created major food and medicine shortages.

“Danger is out of control in the streets,” he writes. On December 6, a new election was held that promises to change things for the better. Reports are guarded, but much prayer needed.

Walter Sayers – Guatemala

“Guatemala and I say thank you so much for investing in us here and just wanted to let you know that we are seeing many salvations and almost all tracts are read on the spot with a lot of enthusiasm.”

Rodelio Mallari – Philippines

“Since July, we have all in all personally distributed and locally shipped a total of 20,000 Filipino Chick tracts entitled: Nasaan Ang Iyong Pangalan (Where is Your Name) and Ang Sukdulang Paghamak (The Greatest Insult) —of which 4,000 copies were reserved and passed out during the creepy 3-day Catholic celebrations of Halloween, All Saints Day and All Souls Day (October 31-November 2). For the most part, the tracts were distributed nationwide by our co-workers’ personal witness, from house to house, street work, mail boxes, bus terminals, shopping malls, schools, police stations, prisons, military camps, etc. We thank the Lord for Chick Publications’ Missions Fund which so generously supplied the free 20,000 comic tracts and paid for their shipping costs from the States to the Philippines.”

India

For years, Chick Publications has worked with Indian partners to print tracts there in the country. Five years since the start, already one million tracts have flowed from local printing presses to ministries all over India. Pictured below are smiling faces enjoying the gospel in the Bengali language.

Pharisees because of their hypocrisy and corrupt leadership. But, when he turned to the crowds following him, He groaned with compassion for them, who were lost without true spiritual shepherds.

When we pass out a tract, if it is to a "Christian," it should be a challenge to a purer walk with Christ. If it is to an unbeliever, they come in two kinds: stony ground where the seed will not prosper and good ground where the Holy Spirit can nurture the seed into fruitful commitment to Christ.

If someone chooses to tear up the tract and put it in the trash, someday he may complain to Jesus on judgment day: "But... I didn't know!" And Christ will remind him of the gospel tract that went into the trash. At that point, he can only hang his head without excuse.

If the unbeliever's heart is touched, and he responds to the gospel, then the seed has fallen on good ground. Although we who plant tracts do not often see the fruit, the thousands of testimonies that have come to Chick Publications show that there are eternal results. Two striking stories come to mind: One Chick tract "seed" was planted in a remote Alaskan wilderness. A distraught young man stood on a cliff overlooking a wild river, determined to jump to his death. However, a flash of color in the dust at his feet caught his eye. He picked it up and discovered it was a Chick tract. The message forever changed his plans and several years later he called the Chick office to relate his testimony and that he now is a pastor.

Another man confessed that he had "stolen" a copy of Holy Joe from his attorney's waiting room but did not read it right away. As a flight instructor, he later read the tract while waiting for his plane to be serviced to take his last flight. But the message changed his plan which was to take the plane to an adequate altitude, nose it over and plant it, full speed into the middle of the runway. Instead, he submitted his shattered life to Jesus, went back and paid the attorney for the tract and led a fellow instructor to the Lord with it.

So, when someone tells you that tracts don't work, remind them that the Great Commission requires that the gospel be spread to everyone: believers, scornful unbelievers and responsive unbelievers. The Holy Spirit can then nurture the planted gospel depending on the softness of the hearts. We have seen letters from people who tore up the first dozen tracts they got, but one day, their heart was softened enough that the message could take root and they responded in faith.

But seed left in the warehouse cannot take root anywhere. Granted, when sown, some will be lost but there is always some good ground out there. However, without the seed, no life will grow. Proverbs talks about the farmer who gets no harvest because he was too lazy to work his field.

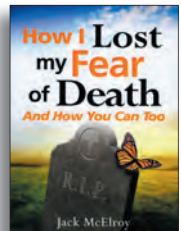

Will we "plant" enough gospel to get any harvest of Christ's approval on judgment day? Remember, three tracts "planted" daily equals over a thousand a year. And everybody who reads one makes a choice—with eternal consequences.

Was he in your church Easter Sunday?

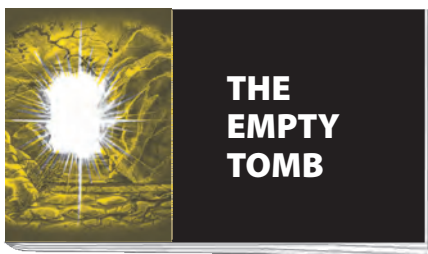

He heard the message, and knew he needed to get right with God. But not that day. He just wasn't ready.

Did you send a tract home with him so that later, when he was alone, he would remember your message?

Perhaps his mother persuaded him to finally go to church with her. Or maybe his little child's friend invited the family.

The point is, he came, and he heard, but didn't do anything about it. Make sure that when he gets home, and the Holy Spirit continues to bring conviction, that he has a tract that tells him what to do. He may not get another chance.

Other political and commercial signs were allowed. Reed asked for legal help from Alliance Defending Freedom (ADF), who won the case, again on Constitutional grounds. Such cases don't make front page headlines, but are huge for soul winners. They set legal precedents that can be used in future cases where overly zealous officials attempt to limit our right to witnessing in public places.

Many church leaders today are disparaging street evangelism, pointing to confrontive techniques used by some groups as discrediting the gospel. For some, the shock effect is necessary to divert them from hell. Others respond to the gentler approach. In any case, engaging gospel tracts extend the witness far beyond the event, carried home to quietly urge response when the heart becomes receptive.

An Open Mission Field Next Door

Today, we are told that there is a record number of inmates in America's jails and prisons. Statistics show that our incarceration rate of over 700 per 100,000 is the highest in the world.

One has to wonder if it is because of our diligent rule of law that convicts a greater number of perpetrators. The general corruption that goes unpunished in many countries would, no doubt, outpace the U.S. if everyone had to pay for their crimes.

Nevertheless, these sad statistics are a huge challenge to the church. Present prison ministries find many open hearts when they care enough to develop this fruitful mission field that is so easily accessible.

One of the most successful prison ministries for the last several decades is Mission Possible in Inverness, Florida. A story relayed by Chaplain Allan Woody is of a death row prisoner. He remembered the cloud of despair was thick in the cell row of prisoners waiting execution. As Chaplain Woody walked by each cell, he would be asked, "Are you coming to see me?" The despair in the voices tore at his heart but he had been cleared to only see a specific one.

Once in the cell with the inmate, he spent an hour discussing how to gain peace with God and hope for eternity. As he prepared to leave, assuring the inmate of his prayers as he awaited his day, the inmate replied, "Brother Woody, everybody is on death row. I just know my date."

The incident was early on in Chaplain Woody's ministry, but it settled in his spirit as a urgency to reach as many prisoners as possible. Over the years he placed hundreds of thousands of tracts, bibles and other literature in any prison where he could. Chaplain Woody has passed on, but is now rejoicing in heaven with some of those whom he guided into the Kingdom. His wife is continuing the ministry. She writes: "Many do not realize they are on death row and only the Savior can grant a pardon through His shed blood on Calvary."

The huge prison population in the U.S. means that there is probably one (or more) of these mission fields near you. Churches who really want to make a difference in their community will not overlook this opportunity. The loneliness and boredom of the men (and women) makes them super receptive to gospel literature and personal witness. By now, most know in their hearts that they are sinners, so are already on the first step to salvation.

Prison officials over the years have spoken approvingly of the effect of Chick tracts on the atmosphere of the prisons. Engaging stories laced with powerful scriptures makes for a must-read delivering a no-nonsense gospel message. Some have testified that it took several exposures to the message before their hearts surrendered. But the illustrations lodged in their memory, tugging away more powerfully when despair was the darkest.

Soul winners, dare we ignore this opportunity to share Christ's peace and joy? Dare we face Him on judgment day if we don't?

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear Ones in Christ:

Last evening a lady came to my front door. I didn't recognize her. But she had come to visit my sister-in-law. It so happened that both of them had worked in the same hospital. The lady said, "Jack, don't you recognize me?" I didn't. She said, "I'm Margaret. I was Lloyd's nurse when he died."

The strange thing was that Lloyd and I had worked together as artists in the same aerospace plant. That was the only guy that got saved in our group when I worked there. I wrote a letter about him recently. I really liked Lloyd, but he was very bitter and wanted nothing to do with God. When Lloyd was in his teens, he became very sick, and they had to remove his infected arm.

I kept witnessing to him as long as I worked there. Then I tried to keep in touch with him.

50 years had passed, and I got word that Lloyd was dying. Fred Carter (our comic book illustrator) had also known Lloyd. We went together to visit him. Fred is a great artist, and also a pastor. We frequently visited Lloyd, giving him tracts, and we lifted up the Lord to him, but with no success.

My little 12-year-old niece was visiting us and I told her about Lloyd. She wanted to see him. So on our next trip to see Lloyd, she joined us. When Lloyd saw her, he brightened up and thoroughly enjoyed her telling him about Jesus. She was beautiful, and a delight.

Fred and I went again, but Lloyd was too sick to see us. A day or so later he died. Both Fred and I felt like failures. But last night, Margaret told me that just before Lloyd died, he called out the name of Jesus, three times, and passed on. I got tears in my eyes!

I believe my little niece was used by God to save Lloyd's soul.

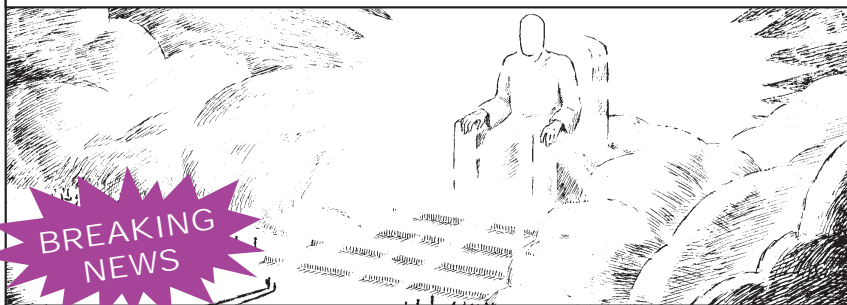

Old folks love to see and talk to young people. You may face the same problem someday. If you have a young person who loves Jesus, encourage them to witness to some old soul. It just might work.
