

New Pope; Same Old Deception

Common to the popes is a strong thread of ecumenism: the thrust to unify all religions, including “Christians.” Evangelical leaders have swallowed the bait, working together on “common causes” such as abortion, biblical marriage, and sanctity of life.

This cooperation clouded the anti-Christ factors of: salvation by works, pope’s authority as Christ’s vice president on earth (Vicar), purgatory, priestcraft hierarchy, and worship of the wafer god and the Virgin Mary goddess. Even though Roman Catholicism has

Abortion Fallout Exposing ‘House of Horrors’

When America legalized the sin of abortion, much of the sordid fallout is only now becoming visible. Statistically, the website, www.numberofabortions.com, lists over 56 million children murdered since the U.S. Supreme Court found room in the constitution for this holocaust. That’s just in the U.S. The worldwide number since 1980 tops 1,295,812,567 and counting at about one every second. (Yes, that’s a billion!)

The trial of abortionist Kermit Gosnell in Pennsylvania a few weeks ago exposed the sordid details of this bloody business. After years of complaints to state authorities who did nothing, federal officials finally raided Gosnell’s abortion mill and found a “house of horrors!”

Shelves of jars contained baby parts and whole fetuses. Some showed signs of

A Crucial Time in Spanish Bible History

By David W. Daniels

We are at a key point in history, facing an onslaught against the Spanish Bible. There is more pressure than ever to seduce people away from the traditional Spanish scriptures to a Babel of modern Bible-doubling versions, just like what happened in the English-speaking world.

Since the late 1500s, the Spanish-speaking Bible-believers have largely had a good Bible based on the preserved Greek and Hebrew manuscripts: the Reina-Valera Bible. In 1602 Cipriano de Valera expressed his hope that his translation would be checked and rechecked, so it would match what “...God dictated to his holy prophets... and to His holy Apostles and Evangelists....”

Since then, however, the checking and rechecking has veered away from the preserved manuscripts. Unknown to many Christians, the Westcott-Hort faith-killing readings have slowly been worked into the Reina Valera Bible over decades.

Publishers said they would make the scriptures more readable; but actually they had a hidden agenda that would introduce not only a new Bible version, but the ecumenical movement and compromise with the Roman Catholic religion.

As a compromise with conservative believers, a Bible was produced, the RV 1960, to get people to trust the revisers, and to produce a bridge to the avalanche of new Bibles that were about to flood the market.

Somebody needs to reveal what is happening. This book, Did Rome Give Us The Spanish Bible (see opposite page), takes the reader, one step at a time, on a path through two histories, of God’s preserved words and of the Devil’s planned Bible counterfeits; from

Hate Speech Laws Threaten Freedom to Witness

A recent poll by Rasmussen Reports found Americans still largely committed to freedom of speech.

However, nearly a third of the respondents seemed conflicted about it. Sixteen percent declared they were undecided and another 12 percent preferred that the government regulate speech.

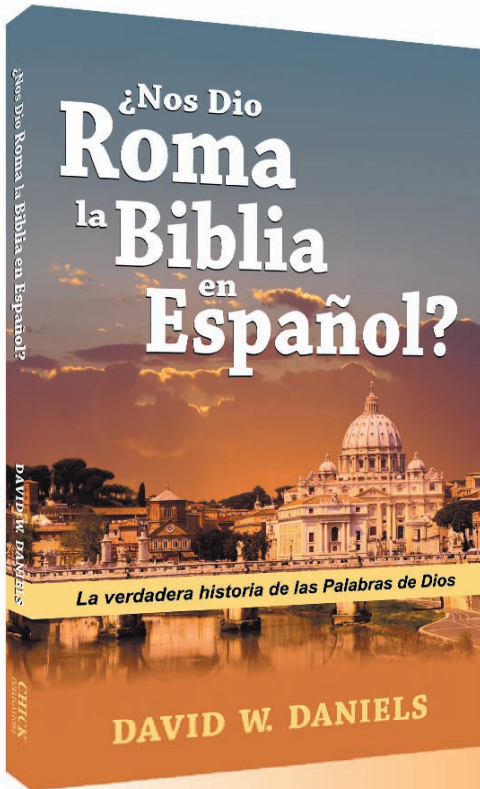

Most Americans take freedom of speech for granted having grown up with the idea that anyone can speak their mind on any subject that they believe. But this is rare in history and also in a majority of today’s world. We need only to look to Canada for evidence of where the trend is going. Under the guise of “human rights” the definition of “hate” has become applied to the Bible itself.

A recent case has been working its way through the courts for several years. William Whatcott in Saskatchewan became aware of the homosexual indoctrination planned for the local public schools and distributed fliers alerting the populace to the unbiblical, dangerous and degrading nature of homosexual behavior.

For his efforts, he was charged with a violation of the hate speech provisions of the Human Rights Code. There followed a lively discussion in public and in the courts over the definition of "hate." Earlier this year, the Canadian Supreme Court confirmed Whatcott's conviction.

In the future, this will be a precedent set to discourage other Christians from speaking up against what God clearly calls sin. America has already moved in this direction by inventing "hate crimes." Traditionally, crime investigations have included a search for a "motive." The Mosaic Law prescribed different penalties for someone who killed a person accidentally because he "hated him not in times past," and someone who planned the murder intentionally.

Once an assault or murder was done, attitudes were brought into play, but the attitude itself was not usually considered criminal. Now, the homosexual lobby has succeeded in moving punishment into the area of attitudes or opinions.

One of the extreme examples of suppression of an attitude showed up in a recent Department of Justice directive.

Federal employees were instructed to put on an approving face when confronted with a fellow lesbian, "gay" or transgender employee. "Don't judge or remain silent. Silence will be interpreted as disapproval," came the instruction. The entire directive can be viewed at: http://libertycounsel.com/wp-content/uploads/2013/05/LGBT_tips_for_managers.pdf

America's founding fathers put both freedom of speech and freedom of religion in the First Amendment on purpose because, without the first one, the other is not possible. They saw clearly how, in history, without guaranteeing these rights, government mind control was the result.

It is a disturbing trend to find a third of the populace either wanting the government to define what is hate or unable to decide. Other polls indicate that over half of the country is in favor of "same-sex marriage."

This does not bode well for any soul winner who dares to speak God's words on this homosexual abomination. Whatcott's experience in Canada shows how thin the wall of protection has become in the Western World. And America is not that far behind.

Unless enough people become convinced that God's way is best, the night will come when "no man can work." In the past, most revivals have been preceded by saturation with no-nonsense gospel tracts. Chick Publications has over 100 titles designed to turn hearts back to God.

Many speak to specific subjects such as homosexuality, abortion and evolution but always end with a challenge to surrender to Christ. We just need to get out more of these paper missionaries to show God's mercy to the lost.

God's words to Moses and the apostles, through the Reformation, the Inquisition, and on to our present time. But all is not lost. This is also the time that God has fulfilled Valera's vision and brought about the best translation of His preserved words in the Spanish language: the Reina-Valera-Gómez Bible. Spanish-speaking people can now say with confidence, "Thus saith the Lord!"

Spanish-speaking brother or sister, the battle has only begun. But you can be on the winning side. Once you understand the history of the Spanish Bible, you will better be able to understand the war going on right now for the preserved words of God in Spanish.

Gospel Saturation Plan Softens Hearts in Mexico

In the May-June, 2011 issue, Battle Cry reported on a Mexico outreach headed up by Missionary Eric Brockhoff. Trained as a sociologist, he began experimenting with ways to deeply and permanently affect the culture of the “colonies,” neighborhoods that have a defined area and culture but where lawlessness is rampant and are often dominated by drug gangs. Even the police avoid getting involved in some of these neighborhoods.

Brockhoff’s plan was to compile “care packages” of surplus food items, candy, toys and Bible literature. He initially picked one “colonia” with about 15,000 people, prepared 8,000 packages that included an assortment of Spanish Chick tracts in each.

A month after the tracts were seeded into the neighborhood, local Christian leaders said that there was a noticeable change in the atmosphere of lawlessness. It became a softening-up process of the hearts of the people so that local pastors and missionaries could more effectively follow up.

This year, Brockhoff has 17 projects going concurrently along the Mexican side of the U.S.-Mexico border. He continues to use surplus toys, candy and care items along with the Chick tracts and other Christian materials such as coloring books and Bible lessons.

Two years ago the distribution event was Halloween, but now they stage celebrations in the neighborhoods with balloons, skits, clowns, music and games to attract the people who are then given the “care packages.”

The projects are sponsored by churches or other local Christians who then can follow up on those who respond. It is not unusual to see 80 to 120 people respond to an altar call. After one such event, a local pastor reported that his church was filled with new children and adults. “Churches have cried out to us to get us more Chick tracts due to their high spiritual and social transformational nature,” writes Brockhoff.

Another of Brockhoff’s projects that Battle Cry reported on in 2011 involved a local prison. Again he started with a small facility of about 800 prisoners, using the same “care package” of treats and a wide variety of Spanish tracts.

After that “neighborhood” had a few days to absorb the messages, they held a service where about 225 inmates accepted Christ. The whole atmosphere of the prison had changed with small Bible study groups forming and drama teams were acting out the stories of the tracts. The tract, El Pistolero (Gunslinger), was a favorite.

Since then, churches around the prisons are reporting that prisoners are coming to their churches after their release to follow up on their commitment to Christ made in prison.

And since Brockhoff’s ministry is built on an increasing saturation of both the colonias and the prisons, the new believers can find an outlet for their growth in sharing their faith.

Brockhoff’s ministry, Vision for the Kingdom, is looking into saturating a much larger prison facility on an island compound with approximately 10,000 inmates.

He is planning on 50 to 60 thousand

What Are Gospel Publishers Hiding?

By David W. Daniels

I am happy to see that various Bible publishers have been coming up with new printings of the King James Bible: King James reference Bibles, King James Study Bibles, and with higher prices on leather, they are coming up with great substitutes that hold together pretty well. But there is a limit to that. And there is something these publishers are hiding.

I've got a number of King James Study Bibles that came out recently. But most of them have anti-King James, Bible-doubting footnotes! Why? Because they don't believe the KJV is God's preserved words, and they don't want YOU to, either. Why?

Because if you did trust the KJV, then they couldn't sell us all the NEW Bible translations they are coming out with, and all their extra materials that go with those versions.

When I got the NIV in Bible college, then I got the NIV Greek-English New Testament. Then I got the NIV Hebrew-English Old Testament, as each section was published. Then they modified the Bible encyclopedias, Bible dictionaries, Bible atlases, all to go with that version.

But a year or two later —Poof! A NEW Bible translation, which means buying all NEW study materials!

Many people buying a King James will get a good quality one and stick with it for years to come. End of sales. But come out with a NEW Bible version,

NEW endorsements, new Bible college requirements, the NEW one the pastor has —and there's a LOT of extra sales!

Here's something else you need to know. The big Bible companies are NOT owned by Bible-believing people! Zondervan is owned by secular Harper Collins, which is owned by News Corporation, under Rupert Murdoch. In 2003, Thomas Nelson bought World Bible Publishers. In 2012, Thomas Nelson was bought by secular Harper Collins, also under News Corporation, under Rupert Murdoch. That's 55% of Bibles produced, right there. I don't need to go any further.

Someone could say, "David, why are you blaming publishers? They didn't write these books." A publisher decides a book should be published. If it doesn't contain what they want, they won't publish it. There's a lot of business to be had, and getting people to doubt is very profitable. Maybe you never thought about it like that.

1 Timothy 6:10 says, "For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

2 Corinthians 2:17 says, "For we are not as many, which corrupt the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God speak we in Christ."

There is a sinister motive involved in getting us to doubt the King James Bible. It's so they can make money off us with all the alternate Bibles and Bible materials they can sell. Don't let them manipulate you into spending all your money on faith-destroying Bibles. Get yourself a good quality King James Bible and put your trust in God's words.

Trust me. It will pay off in the end.

all the features used to define cults such as Mormonism and Jehovah's Witnesses, Evangelicals have bought the lie that it is just another "denomination," with a different worship style.

Christianity Today headlined an article, "A Pope for All Christians," just before Francis was elected. In it is a quote about Catholic-Evangelical relations by Brian Stiller, a global ambassador for the World Evangelical Alliance: "Not in 500 years have the two sides been so close and friendly." The tone of the article is clearly that we are all Christians with a common gospel and brotherhood. "Whether we Protestants like to admit it or not, though, there is a single person in Rome who can influence Christians of every stripe to work more heartily in the cause of Christ..." the article concludes.

Now that he has the Protestants in his pocket, the new pope went on to make an astounding statement in a recent speech: "The Lord has redeemed all of us, all of us, with the Blood of Christ: all of us, not just Catholics. Everyone! 'Father, the atheists?' Even the atheists. Everyone! And this Blood makes us children of God of the first class! Thanks for all of the new tracts! Let me tell you about last Tuesday night at the County Jail. The Chaplain felt lead to send three of us volunteer chaplains to "lock down solitary confinement," (6 x 10) concrete/steel cells. These men were put here because they were uncontrollable, etc. My first two inmates were past reason/understanding. However, the third inmate was in his mind and planning a break out. He said he was saved, but two wives had left him. I could not deal with him about his soul he was so arrogant. I finally said I had to move on, and kicked him two tracts under the door, Unloved & Peacemaker. However, about fifteen minutes later, a guard came and asked me to revisit cell sixteen. I went back and it was the aforementioned inmate. He was crying and said, "Sir, I lied and I am not saved. I can not understand the Bible, theology, or preaching. However, I sure can understand those two little books you kicked under the door. I need to get saved." He repeated the sinner's prayer after me with tears running down his face. Glory! A couple weeks later I was in another pod which housed a lot of Christian inmates and told them about it. The inmates said he is in this pod and told us how he got saved by reading those little books and praying to Jesus.

having their spinal cords snipped at the neck, indicating that they were born alive and had to be killed. Operating tables and patient charts contained dried blood.

But the testimony of Gosnell's employees exposed the gruesome details of the day-to-day operation. Patients were sometimes overmedicated by unqualified staff. Workers were directed to insert scissors into the neck and snip the spinal cords if the baby showed signs of life. Sometimes the procedures caused a miscarriage into the toilet and one worker described seeing a baby trying to swim before it was held under the water to drown.

At first, the trial was largely ignored by the liberal media, but as the horror continued to unfold, pro-life voices began to demand exposure. At one point someone counted the Gosnell articles at less than 500 and the coverage of a famous sports figure, who "came out" as a homosexual at the same time frame at over 2,000.

One of the most disturbing revelations was the failure to report child rape. A teenager would be brought in by an adult who got her pregnant and no report would be made to the police. These statutory rapes were routinely covered up.

"The Gosnell case is a watershed moment for the issue of abortion," said Troy Newman, President of Operation Rescue and Pro-Life Nation. "The discovery of his horrific practices helped shed light on an abortion industry that has run amok without oversight or accountability for decades." As a result of this case, many of the abortion mills across the country are getting a closer scrutiny. Operators of a similar one in Texas are heading for trial and several have been closed down by state authorities.

In 2000, the Lord put it into Jack Chick's heart to speak to this horror. The result was a tract that carries some of Jesus' anger at this shedding of innocent blood. It shows how our modern abortion fits into Satan's strategy of killing babies throughout history. The demons behind pagan idols demanded child sacrifices. Is there any difference when we kill babies that threaten to interrupt our worship of the idols of convenience and pleasure?

The tract, Who Murdered Clarice?, shows that a whole crowd of people are guilty in this sinful business: "... parents, relatives, doctors, nurses, senators, congressmen, lobbyists, supreme court justices and finally the presidents..." stand guilty before Jesus in judgment.

As usual, Who Murdered Clarice?, ends in a message of forgiveness to anyone who is willing to repent of having been involved in an abortion or in the abortion business.

With the increased awareness of the consequences of promoting this sin, it is time for soul winners to pass along this message of hope of forgiveness through repentance and seeking His mercy.

The Ones I Let Get Away

David W. Daniels

You know how people who fish often talk about, "...the one that got away?"

What about "the one I let get away?" It's much harder to talk about those, because we are responsible for them.

On my vacation to Sequoia last week I met a family who went fishing. The whole day they only caught one fish—and it was the wife who caught it. But it was so small that they decided to throw it back.

Unlike fish, there is no person on earth that is "too small" for us to reach for Christ. We may be totally unworthy; but Christ died for every single one of us, even the ones who were at that moment crucifying Him.

He also died for the people eating lunch just two tables over from me.

Don't get me wrong. I gave tracts to lots of people:

- To park rangers
- To cashiers
- To servers
- To the Jehovah's Witnesses who offered me their books (You know who you are. Please read the tract I gave you and check out our website. Christ died to save you from hell and the lake of fire!)

- To families we met, while camping, while hiking
- To anyone I was able to strike up a conversation with, pretty much!

But that's where I failed. Sure, I'm okay with people I talk to.

What about those two families at the two tables I couldn't strike up a conversation with? I felt that tug in my heart: "Give it to them." And I strained my brain, thinking "How can I do this? I have to leave. Can I just hand it to them and move on?"

The truth is, all they can say is "Thank you" or "No, thank you." Yes or No. But my brain went into overdrive.

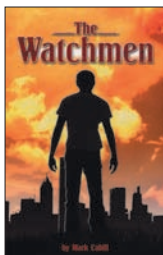

The moment passed. I walked on by them, still feeling that tug, but I couldn't even get out of my comfort zone for those two families for whom Christ died. If they ever see me this side of Judgment—"Guys...I'm sorry. Please forgive me." I prayed that someone else would reach them.

But God wanted me to reach them, at that moment, in that place. Whatever their response would have been was on them. But what I did, letting them get away, that was on me.

I didn't make that mistake when I went door to door last Sunday. I kept remembering those two families, and the fact that on June 7, 1972, someone went outside his comfort zone for me, to give me a tract that pointed me toward eternal life.

I hope you will do better than I did. Have your Bible and tracts ready—and GET outside your comfort zone. You will feel SO much better in the end.

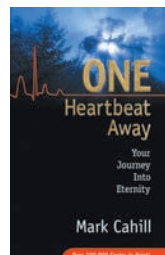

If you would like a wonderful book to help you get outside YOUR comfort zone, read The Watchmen by Mark Cahill. You'll never feel the same way again about the lost souls around you, or the many ways you can use to reach them.

Same Old Deception...

us all! And we all have a duty to do good. And this commandment for everyone to do good, I think, is a beautiful path towards peace.”

This is a bold disregard of a huge block of scriptures that draw a clear line between believers and unbelievers. Redemption is what happens to believers only. It is offered to unbelievers, but if they reject it they remain unredeemed sinners no matter how much “good” they do. It is clear that this pope plans to continue the campaigning of previous popes to become the head of the coming one-world religion. This modern push for ecumenism began in earnest at the Second Ecumenical Council at the Vatican during the early 1960s.

Having failed to blunt the Reformation by inquisition and world wars, Rome decided to try the honey of deception. A world-wide campaign began to seduce the Protestants into believing that Catholicism was just another denomination.

Now that that is accomplished, the push is on to bring in the other religions. In 2011, Pope Benedict held a fourth meeting in Assisi, France, of delegates of a dozen world religions from Muslim to Hindu to Yoruba. Pope John Paul II had hosted similar meetings in 1986, 1993 and 2002 to pray together and discuss world peace.

From the above quotes, it is obvious that Pope Francis is continuing to push this “unity,” sacrificing the Bible along the way. With a Jesuit pope in place we can expect a renewed drive by the Jesuits of their agenda to bring all religions under the authority of the papacy.

Few voices are raised today against this prostitute “church,” identified in Revelation 17 and 18. Many years ago Jack Chick was led to pick up the Reformation’s message that the Vatican was the Whore of Revelation. Several tracts, books and comics are now available in our catalog and on the chick.com website.

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear ones in Christ:

The homosexuals never give up. Their cry is still: “We’re here, we’re queer and we’re coming after your children.” They also declare, “We’re born this way!” which is a lie out of hell, put out to guilt-induce us into feeling sorry for them, giving them an edge.

But their agenda is fierce, powerful, and effective. Politicians fear their push for gay rights. Their screaming, cursing demands never stop. Their influence comes through the media using gays in comedy—which helps open the door for them. And it has paid off big time. Laws have been passed making them victims of hate crimes. Pastors are in danger if they preach against them. The louder they yell, the more their opposition backs down into the shadows.

Last week a black basketball player came out of the closet. The gays and the media loved it as thousands cheered. The gay agenda in California schools starting with the first grade is paying off for them and giving us a gay world.

The word of God is rejected by governments worldwide. Gay power has been embraced by nearly all—even pushed by the UN. Is the U.S. involved? She’s as guilty as the rest and will face God’s wrath for her crimes.

We’ve prayed and asked God for a story to hit both Satan and the gay lies, and He gave us the tract, Uninvited, which we released two years ago. I expected a roar from the sodomites: phone calls, curses, but what did we hear? Nothing! Not even a peep. They were afraid to draw attention to it! God gave us the weapon we needed.

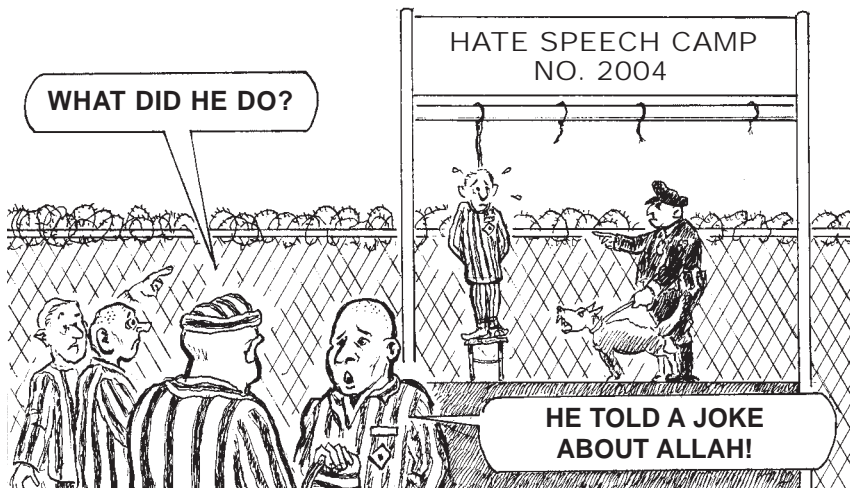

They weren’t born gay. Satan gave them a homosexual demon when they were sexually abused. Who was the offender? A relative? Only the Lord knows. Gays seem to sense something dark is inside them. There is, and it’s got control of them.

All young people face this demon. The schools pressure them to think it’s alright so they go with the crowd. But to show your love and concern we need to offer them a copy of Uninvited. Young people will realize the gay lifestyle is demonic and only the Lord Jesus Christ can set them free.
