

Is Mother Theresa Really a Saint?

In a huge celebration in Rome in September, Pope Francis declared Mother Teresa a “saint.” Considered one of the “most recognizable faces of the 20th century,” the tiny nun won a Nobel peace prize for a network of homes for the sick and dying around the world. She became a world symbol of goodness and charity.

But the process of elevating her to “sainthood” some 15 years after her death exposes another Roman Catholic deviation from scripture. To the pope, sainthood is not conferred when someone is born

How sad these “souls” are “caught” in a pagan, counterfeit church that teaches that this deceased lady can answer their prayers.

Crossway Publishers Waffle on a “Permanent” Bible

Crossway publishers’ recent decision to make their English Standard Version (ESV) a “permanent” text, earned them considerable wash-back. Opponents argued that occasional updating is necessary to keep up with popular expressions. Others claimed that Bibles need to reflect “scholars’ new understandings of the text.”

This highlights a debate over the whole landscape of Bible translation work: Once a language is done, should it be updated every time the language changes?

On one side, advocates of “King James Only” claim that its 1611 classic English is still good enough. We only need to learn a few hundred “less familiar” words to get a clear meaning of God’s preserved will.

On the other side, in making the ESV and all other modern translations, the theory

Facebook CEO Zuckerberg Trying to Fund Heaven on Earth

Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg and his wife Priscilla Chan have just pledged 3 billion dollars to “cure, prevent or manage all diseases” by the end of the century. Chan, a pediatrician, is hoping to spare the pain she sees when she delivers bad news to parents. Few people would argue with this noble goal.

But it is one example of an impossible dream held by so many of the leaders in the “world.” It is a place opposed to God’s plan of salvation, redemption and true abundant life.

The dream sits squarely on the lie of evolution. This generation, baptized in technology, believes that they can speed up evolution by altering DNA and create a super race, freed of disease, aging, poverty and hatred. Robots, bright with artificial intelligence, will be willing servants to bring a utopia of abundance and harmony.

This counterfeit heaven on earth will be funded by the mountainous fortunes amassed by such as Zuckerberg and his techno-cohorts. Sadly, many who claim to believe the Bible are buying into this fantasy instead of discerning the “signs of the [end] times” that describe the increasing chaos until Christ comes to rule in righteousness.

Daniel is told in chapter 12 that “... many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.” This certainly describes our freeways and internet. But he was also told that: “Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand.”

We still see multitudes around the world, coming into Christ’s Kingdom and being “purified, and made white.” But also many are “tried,” with persecution rising in much of the world. Instead of being on the threshold of a new, man-made era of harmony and abundance, those who “do wickedly” will torpedo the dreams of those who refuse to include God in their plans.

America’s prosperity is the direct result of including God and honoring His word. That abundance has financed the spread of the gospel to all nations, just as Christ promised in Matt. 24:14. After that, though, He said that the end would come, not some man-made utopia.

Only righteousness can exalt a nation (Prov. 14:34.) As long as the hearts of sinful men are unchanged, sin will bring reproach: poverty, war, hatred, by those who “do wickedly.” The enemy of men’s souls, the trinity of “world, flesh and the devil” will not permit man to get his dream, no matter how much money they spend.

Daniel was told that the wise will understand. And Solomon declared that “The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise” (Prov. 11:30). Never before in history has temptation of the “world” been more subtle for the Bible believer.

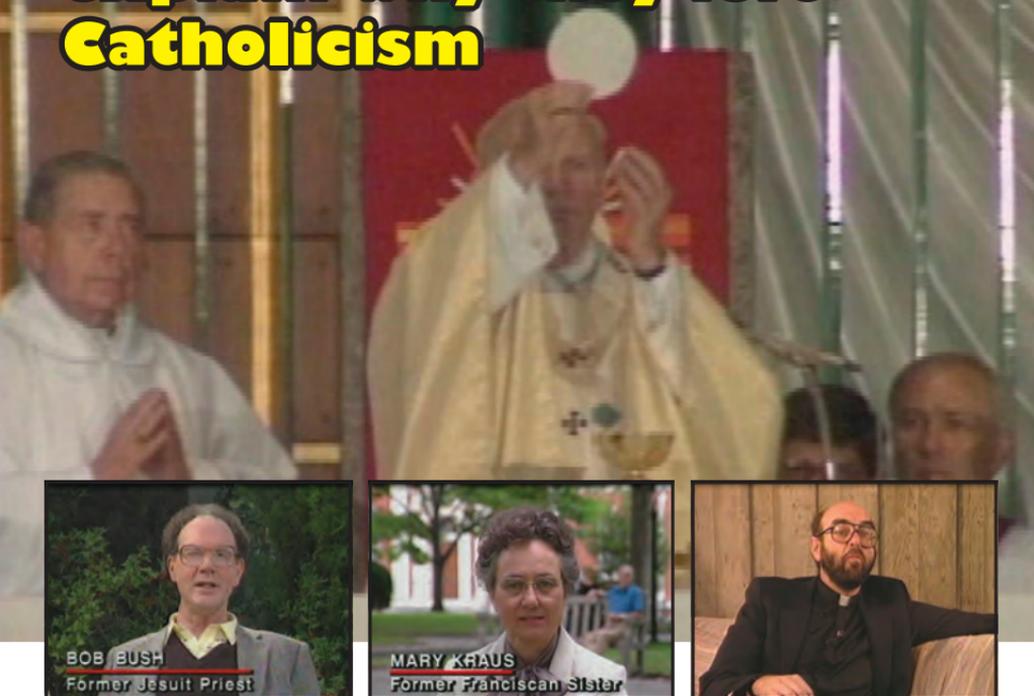

Church leaders and future leaders are told that using tracts is old fashioned and doesn’t work. Evangelism must be done through the long process of building a relationship to get permission to share the gospel.

But random sowing of the gospel seed does work. Thousands have written or called Chick Publications, testifying of changed lives from the message in a single tract—or a series of tracts found at random times.

A sample of these testimonies can

Questions for Your Pastor (and Other Deceived Friends)

Today, finding a good church is a challenge. Deciding to look for a better church is a challenge. Of course, no church is perfect, but certain fundamentals are essential for your spiritual growth and that of your family.

Central to a “good” church, of course, is the “word of God.” Every church worth considering will firmly state that they are founded on God’s word. But is that answer enough?

Unfortunately, finding the “word of God” among all the modern bibles, is not easy.

The first question your pastor must

was that as the language changes, so should the text, so “modern man” could better understand God’s will.

In explaining the background of Crossway’s decision, Craig Bloomberg, New Testament Professor at Denver Seminary, revealed a more serious question for Bible readers: do we have a reliable Bible today?

In a statement by the Crossway Translation Oversight Committee they “...affirm that their highest responsibility is to ‘guard the deposit entrusted to you’ (1 Timothy 6:20) — to guard and preserve the very words of God as translated in the ESV Bible.”

But Bloomberg claims that we no longer have the “very words of God.” In a discussion on Christianity Today’s “Quick to Listen” blog, 9/16/16, he states: “The vast majority of Christian statements that have been made over the centuries have regularly said that what we believe is inspired, infallible, inerrant and authoritative is the original text, the original manuscripts in the Hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek; and it has really only been a very tiny minority in the history of the church represented notably today in the King James Only movement that has tried to argue for infallible preservation of the text....”

Of course, the only way for “The vast majority of Christian statements...” to be true is to include Roman Catholicism as Christian. And the “Original Autographs Only” doctrine was invented in 1881, just before the English Revised Version of Westcott and Hort was released. (See “The Christian’s Golden Plates” at <https://youtu.be/JCG4SJJsqdg>) “Providential preservation” of the text into English has been believed by the true church as far back as the 1640s, but consistently denied by the Vatican counterfeit church.

So, Bloomberg is saying that the “very words of God” that the Oversight Committee was so carefully guarding were lost long ago when the “original manuscripts” wore out. Now, all we can do today is trust the scholars and “hope” we have His words.

Bloomberg goes on to admit that the “King James only movement” has to “... simply make a faith commitment that somewhere in the welter of manuscripts is one that has preserved it accurately...”

So, anyone who trusts Matt. 24:35, Mark 13:31 or Luke 21:33, where Jesus says that heaven and earth will pass away but His words will not, is out on a limb of “faith!” That limb of trusting God’s promise is way sturdier than the thin one of doubting that Jesus was able to keep His promise. From the beginning, God opted to use written language to communicate His will. Would He leave us in doubt of what He said, just as the church received the Great Commission to bring the gospel to all the world?

Bloomberg also states that “infallible preservation” is a “...myth that can’t actually be defended.” (Actually, there are over 5,700

Russia Moving Quickly Against Christians

This recent letter from a missionary shows how quickly a mission field can close. This missionary is back in the states after many fruitful years on the field. The Russian government recently passed an anti-terrorism law targeting extremists. The Russian Orthodox Church persuaded the government to include evangelical Christians along with the targeted Muslim terrorists. The Orthodox Church is deeply imbedded in the strong Russian nationalism and moved quickly to take advantage of the new law.

I just talked to my wife in St. Petersburg, Russia. She is there for 17 days and is meeting with as many of our church members as she can. She told me yesterday that the new laws are firmly being put in place and if fully activated it will be worse than the old Soviet Union. I lived in Russia for 16 years and my wife all her life.

We distributed over 50,000 This Was Your Life from 1992 to 1995. We registered over 40,000 precious Russians praying to receive Jesus Christ as Savior. Many of those are the results of Chick Tracts. We gave out another 50,000 tracts during the remaining time we served there.

The Russian Orthodox church was at first our friends. In fact Alexei II, Patriarch of Russia, furnished our first visas and did so until he realized that we were there to plant Evangelical churches. We had helped many Christian businessmen start new businesses with American knowhow.

The Orthodox were very happy at first as they saw ways to fill their coffers. The 8 churches we planted in Russia have gone underground or meet in small groups. My wife said some members from other churches said that government officials stand at their church doors and take everyone's name when they enter.

Other churches who invite foreign missionary workers are having difficulties in inviting them. They are told that a missionary must get a religious workers visa and then get a religious work visa. The only problem is that there is no such thing. Please keep praying for these wonderful brothers and sisters.

There is a move of God now around the world. I personally feel that the great awaking in Russia has spread all over third-world countries. Presently our third-world pastors have planted their 50,000th church since 1986 and work in 87 countries. We support around 1000 third-world pastors and have in training about 5,000 more men.

I am thankful for Chick Publications. Presently my wife and I keep This Was Your Life in Hindu, Russian, Chinese, and English. As we travel all over America we find these language groups in most restaurants and gas stations.

I feel that God is up to something very big and is harvesting many souls for His Son's Bride.

God bless you in abundance.

Yours by His Wonderful Grace, manuscripts that support God preserving His words, all the way up to the KJV.)

Bloomberg doesn't trust Christ's promise to preserve His words. But he trusts textual "scientists" to give him a text worth "carefully guarding?" He admits that what he is guarding is not "inspired, infallible, inerrant and authoritative." [And this is a "professor" in a "Christian" Seminary?!]

Author David W. Daniels is right that all the modern versions can do is stir up doubt and confusion for those who refuse to "make a faith commitment" to Christ's promise to preserve His words. Daniels proves that we can trust that promise given to us in the Classic English KJV. ## Questions for your Pastor... From page 4

answer is: Do we have an infallible Bible today? Ask to see the church's statement of faith and look at the section concerning the Bible. If it reads with a simple, generic statement such as: "We believe the Bible is the infallible word of God," they have dodged the issue. This leaves it open to any book with "Bible" on the cover.

If the statement of faith reads "infallible in the original autographs," he doesn't believe that we have a reliable Bible today; only the first copies written by the apostles and prophets themselves are reliable.

If he insists that his Bible is God's perfect word, ask him to look if there is a note at Mark 16:9-20. If there is one suggesting that that section is not in the "oldest and best manuscripts," ask him if he would preach on that section, since it may not be really part of what Mark wrote.

If he is still with you, move to Acts 8:37. If it is missing, ask him why. If he says it doesn't matter, suggest he give you another good scripture to refute infant baptism.

Now, invite him to look at 1 Cor. 1:18. Does his Bible declare us safely saved or are we just in the process of "being saved?"

Since many of the changes and deletions in the modern bibles favor Roman Catholic dogma, ask the pastor what his opinion is of the wafer god, Virgin Mary goddess, purgatory, praying to dead saints, and confession to a priest, taught by the Pope. A simple question might be to just ask: "Is the Pope saved?"

At this point, either the pastor has closed the conversation and you now know that his church is not for you, or he is intrigued with the discussion. If he appears ignorant, but open to further information about Satan's monstrous conspiracy against God's word, you can continue to show him how the modern bibles are slowly shifting to becoming just another religious document to be included with all the others in the end time—a one-world bible for the pope's one world religion.

Chick Publications has several paperback books on the Bible versions that explain in detail the monstrous plot against the word of God in the modern versions. Look What's Missing lists, in great detail, missing words, phrases or whole verses in over 250 places in 41 popular Bible versions.

Why They Changed the Bible describes Satan's plan to water down the Bible until it will fit with the literature of all the other religions into the end-time one-world "bible" for the coming one-world religion.

Lutherans Decided Reformation 'Struggle' Is Over

Lutheran officials are joining Senior Roman Catholics to make October 31, 2017 the end of their Protestant "protesting." That date marks the 500th anniversary of Martin Luther's posting of his "95 Theses" on the door of a Wittenberg church. That event is considered as the beginning of the split from Rome's counterfeit "church," that released the true gospel to "all nations."

In the joint announcement, they claim that: "The awareness is dawning on Lutherans and Catholics that the struggle of the 16th century is over. The reasons for mutually condemning each other's faith have fallen by the wayside."

This can only be explained by the descendants of Luther abandoning the Bible. The biblical "reasons" have not changed. That means that either they gave up the Bible or have twisted the meaning — or both.

Those "reasons" included (and still include) worship of a wafer god and the Virgin Mary goddess, and bowing to a pontiff who claims to be Christ's vice president in charge of all religion on the earth. The indulgences that Luther objected to are still being handed out as get-out-of-purgatory cards. Alternate mediators are still being installed with Mother Teresa being the latest example.

The article announcing this event cites "ecumenism, globalization and the secularization of Western societies" as the cause for this "celebration." If we understand biblical prophecy, these terms illustrate how we got here and where we are going.

The "secularized" societies have decided they can build heaven on earth without God. Through science and reason they will conquer disease, poverty and even aging and death.

Then, through "ecumenism," all religions will agree on a common teaching and values supported by common literature including a gutted Bible. Thus "globalization" will unite all economies, political systems, and religions, which they hope to merge into a harmonious "global" community. All "fundamentalists" will be charged with extremism and marked for elimination.

Piece by piece, this utopian fantasy of heaven on earth is being assembled. But the preserved Bible that we have today says that it won't happen. It speaks of the spirit of anti-Christ that is behind all this humanistic maneuvering. Then, at last, the incarnation of that spirit will emerge as the beast out of the bottomless pit.

But how do we know that? Because we have the KJV, a complete Bible, one with a solid history of God's promised protection of His word. The creeping confusion of modern Bibles is well along toward producing the gutted one world Bible that will support that one world religion. But the PR campaign against the Classic English King James has almost succeeded in the minds of even the "Protestants."

So, should Bible believers join the 70 million Lutherans who belong to the Lutheran World Federation in calling for the end of Protestantism? Is there really nothing to "protest" any longer, as Paul Crouch

These are just a few of the reports we receive from missionaries who use Chick tracts from the Chick Missions Fund

Mike and Mary Wallace—Mexico City

“Yes, we could certainly use more Chick tracts. They are so well accepted here in Mexico City and there are over 20 million people in the city and another 16 million around the edge of the city. We have had some people approach us here saying they received Christ after receiving the tracts that we gave them — those that you sent. As we walk up and down the streets passing out tracts, we see people reading them as we go, and upon our return, often see them still reading them. I had a man approach me with tears in his eyes not too long ago saying he got saved after reading a tract.”

Jerry Alford—Venezuela

“The Chick tracts are a key in our church planting efforts. There have been over 10 churches started by your tracts. The churches you have helped us start, they now are trying to start churches. There has been five, second-generation churches started and we have a plan for four more that I will be directly working with.

Thank you. The people in Venezuela LOVE THE TRACTS AND WILL ASK FOR MORE. This opens the door for more witnessing.”

India

Our contact there wrote: “It’s a very tough phase the world over for gospel work, and especially in India. A lot of missionaries are being killed and atrocities are being committed against their families.

“The main stream media somehow never gets this part of the news. But the gospel is prospering in India like never before. For every missionary that goes down, ten more go out in their place.”

We’re planning another project of 250,000 tracts for India.

declared several years ago on TBN?

The celebration statement claimed that “belief in Jesus” was enough for unity. But is the Roman wafer Jesus the same as the Biblical Christ? Should we reposit our prayers to the Mary goddess and hundreds of “patron saints”? Shall we give up the assurance of salvation through Christ’s finished work on the cross for a hope-so eventual exit from purgatory?

Sorry, Rome hasn’t changed. These “sheeple” Protestants have abandoned the Biblical Jesus for sweet ecumenical wine. God commands us to come out of this counterfeit, prostitute “church,” to avoid suffering her plagues on judgment day.

the area where they live in Mumias, almost all schools (except private which are very expensive), are run by Muslims.

Well, his daughter was asking one of the girls WHY does she believe all those things the Muslims teach, etc.

A teacher took her into the principal’s office and took the tract and told her NEVER to bring such things to the school again. Then she tore up the tract!! But, praise God, the girl was not afraid and she understood the reaction because she has read those tracts!

That Mumias area is also heavily dominated by the Catholics. So, many tracts are being handed out there as well! We ARE getting some very curious responses and questions from Catholics. Most don’t even know what they really believe.

I am just SO excited at the way the tracts are being received! Pastors, evangelists and others are coming for tracts to hand out! It is just such a blessing to see what an impact the tracts are making, all over. Many of our pastors come from far outlying areas.

again. Actually, the Vatican does not teach salvation as an event, but a process of lifetime events, called sacraments, necessary to possible salvation, though one can never be sure he is safely saved.

In the Bible, saints are ordinary Christians. They are not “holier” people who died, were prayed to, and answered prayers with miracles. (Note: The term appears over 60 times in the KJV. But it’s missing from the NIV, making it easier to redefine the term to fit Roman doctrine.)

Rome’s process of “making saints” is part of a whole system of pretending dead people can mediate for us besides Christ. That sets up a pantheon of semi-gods, including the Virgin Mary goddess. Theresa joins more than 10,000 “saints” put in place to intercede for all kinds of needs.

They say you can bury an image of one saint in your yard to help you sell your house. Another is the patron saint of sterile women. Still another can be invoked against thunderstorms. A list at https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/List\_of\_patron\_saints\_by\_occupation\_and\_activity will help you pick one for your problem of the day.

But the Virgin Mary is Queen of these heavenly helpers, of course. It took several centuries to get her into position as a co-advocate with Jesus.

Not long after Christ’s resurrection, Justin Martyr and Irenaeus wrote of her being included in the salvation process. At the Council of Ephesus in 431, the Virgin Mary was installed as the Mother of God. In 553, she was declared a perpetual virgin. But the Bible clearly states she birthed at least 6 children.

In 1854, Pope Pius IX decided that she was born without sin (Immaculate Conception). Then in 1950, Pope Pius XII declared that she ascended bodily to heaven (Assumption of Mary).

Currently, some in Roman Catholic leadership are campaigning to designate this Virgin Mary goddess as Mediatrix or even Co-Redemptrix with Jesus in dispensing the grace of salvation.

Like all other false religions, Jesus is the target. They don’t officially deny that Jesus is God. But they essentially elbow Him aside in Roman Catholic rituals and worship. Some even teach that He is the severe Judge ready to whack you for your sin, while gentle, loving Mary will hear the cry of your heart and appease His wrath.

Many Roman Catholics are discouraged from reading the Bible and directed to petition one of the Mary goddesses or one of 10,000 “saints” for their needs. All over the world, statues and monuments are named “Our Lady of (you name it).” Google serves up over 240 million hits on this open-ended phrase. All of this is designed to redirect the attention and prayers of the “faithful” to Rome’s counterfeit mediators.

Paul made it clear to Timothy (1 Tim. 2:5) that: “...there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.” Directing prayer to “saints” and the Virgin Mary goddess is just further proof that this is the prostitute “church” of Rev. 17 and 18.

Brothers and Sisters:

Rome always moves carefully with the long view in mind. Former Jesuit Alberto Rivera told Jack Chick, "Rome always plans things in 50s and 100s."

For example, in 1983, when celebrating Martin Luther's 500th birthday, Pope John Paul II actually spoke in a Lutheran church. He said, "I have come because the Spirit of God in our days has guided us through the ecumenical dialogue to the search for full unity of Christians." He said this unity was "...the best preparation for the advent of God in our world," meaning one united "Christian" religion to prepare for Christ's return.

Wrong. One world religion signals the rise of Antichrist, not Jesus Christ.

This timing was no coincidence. From Halloween 2016 to Halloween 2017, Jesuit Pope Francis will celebrate 500 years since Martin Luther began the Protestant Reformation. Why would Catholics celebrate? As the pope's friend Tony Palmer declared to an enthusiastic Protestant audience, "Luther's protest is over!"

But this coming year also marks 50 years of Lutheran dialog with Catholics, as well as 50 years after Eugene Nida got the United Bible Societies to work with Rome to set up joint Catholic-Protestant Bible translating projects worldwide. And the very first project was with two Jesuits in Pope Francis' home country of Argentina.

One world religion. One world Bible for one world religion. And Protestants are begging the pope to make it happen! Christian churches are falling for the whole "unity" lie, hook, line and sinker.

We cannot stop this from happening. It's in the Bible. But we can delay it a few more years —maybe a generation. We can ruin the Whore's schedule by getting out Gospel tracts. Sinners trapped in Catholicism, other cults and materialism must be shown the way out of sin. God has given us the means to do it.

But we must act fast.

"And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Galatians 6:9). Let's reap all the harvest we can, as long as we can.

In Christ Jesus, and for His service,

David Daniels
